Coronavirus 2019-nCoV Update

Current Situation

Molex has multiple manufacturing locations within China that are closed the week of 27th January 2020 for the Chinese New Year (CNY) holiday. Local governments in China have extended the closure of these facilities until at least 10 February 2020. Molex is complying with all China government regulations and is closely working with our supply chain in China to understand how they may be affected and to minimize disruption of component deliveries.

At the Corporate level, Molex is also restricting travel, based on the current restrictions being enforced in China. Any visits to our China-based facilities, including Hong Kong and Macau, will be postponed until after 10th February 2020 or when these travel restrictions are lifted in China.

Logistics

Molex is monitoring shipments and shipping lanes inbound and outbound from China. Apart from Wuhan, air and ocean operations in other cities that include Shanghai, Chengdu, and Guangzhou etc. are experiencing reduced operations because of the CNY holiday. We will continue to monitor logistics and make the necessary adjustments to minimize any delivery impact to our customers.

Operations Resumption

Once our China plants resume normal operations, the Business Continuity team at each Molex manufacturing location will enact the following measures based on Molex's Global Pandemic Plan: travel and visitor reduction, absenteeism monitoring, employee and visitor screening (including temperatures), use of face masks, increased disinfection, and employee awareness training. Each team is responsible for monitoring coronavirus developments locally and working with the Business Continuity Corporate Response team to help ensure continued production and customer service support.

Molex has enacted our Global Pandemic and Business Continuity plans to help ensure the health and safety of our employees and to meet our customers' needs for high quality products with timely delivery. We will keep you updated with any significant changes in the situation

If you have additional inquiries relative to customer orders, please contact your Customer Service Representative or Molex Sales. For specific questions regarding the Coronavirus and Molex, please email bcp@molex.com.
